Permission for the duplication and/or licensing of Ralph Rinzler Folklife Archives and Collections (“Rinzler Archives”) digital images may be granted upon the following conditions:

1. This permission refers to reproductions of photographic or digital still images only, and does not permit the use of this material for any other purpose without specific written approval by the Rinzler Archives, Smithsonian Institution. Some images in our collections may not be available for purchase or licensing. Permission to use Smithsonian-owned content is at the sole discretion of the Smithsonian Institution.

2. Image licenses may be granted for the one-time, one-language, non-exclusive non-transferable worldwide use of an image. The Term of each license may not exceed the Term specified in Section D of this Image Request and License Form, unless specifically approved in writing. Requests to reproduce in subsequent publications and editions will be considered upon submission of a new license request form.

3. Only photographic or digital material supplied by the Rinzler Archives or Smithsonian Photographic Services may be used for publication purposes. Downloading or copying from any other source is prohibited unless prior arrangements have been made with the Rinzler Archives. No cropping or other alteration is permitted without the express written consent of the Smithsonian Institution.

4. This permission extends only to such rights as the Smithsonian Institution and its Rinzler Archives has to authorize reproduction and does not purport to include any rights that other parties may have under the Copyright Law of the United States, or state right of publicity laws, or the laws of various countries in which the Requestor’s works may be published or distributed. It is Requestor’s sole responsibility to ascertain whether any such rights exist, and to obtain all such permissions as may be necessary to reproduce and publish the image. Requestor agrees to defend, indemnify and hold the Smithsonian Institution, including its Ralph Rinzler Folklife Archives and Collections, harmless against any costs, claims, liabilities, loss, damages, and attorney’s fees related to Requestor’s use of the images licensed herein. This indemnification obligation includes causes of action based upon a claim that Requestor’s use of the images licensed herein infringes or violates any intellectual property rights including, but not limited to patents, copyrights, trade names, trade secrets, privacy, publicity rights, licenses or any other rights of any third party.

5. These photographs shall not be used to show or imply Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage or Smithsonian Institution endorsement of any commercial product or enterprise, or to indicate that the or the Smithsonian Institution concurs with the opinions expressed in, or confirms the accuracy of any text used with these photographs. The Smithsonian Institution owns and controls the trademarks in its names and logo. Except for the credit(s) to the Smithsonian Institution provided by the Rinzler Archives staff, Requestor shall not refer to the Smithsonian Institution or any of its museums, organizations, programs, archives, or facilities in any manner, for any purpose (including, but not limited to, advertising, marketing, publicity, or fundraising).

7. This Image License shall be governed and construed by applicable federal law and the laws of Washington, D.C., to the extent applicable, and for purposes of construction or interpretation shall be deemed to have been executed and performed wholly within the boundaries of Washington, D.C. This Image License may not be assigned without Smithsonian Institution’s prior, written, approval; however, this Agreement will be binding upon the successors in interest of each party. No amendments, modifications or waivers to this Image License are valid unless in writing and signed by both parties.

7. As part of this agreement, the Smithsonian Institution requires that one copy of the publication/film/other media in which Rinzler Archives photographs have been used be furnished at no cost to the Rinzler Archives for use in our collections. Please send the publication/work copy to the address below.
